Dick Willey, President, Perdue AgriBusiness

Dick Willey is President of Perdue AgriBusiness LLC, one two operating divisions of Perdue Farms. He oversees a diverse group of agricultural businesses in the domestic and international food, feed, agricultural inputs and biofuel industries.

Under Dick's leadership, Perdue's agricultural commodities business grew from primarily supplying the internal needs of Perdue's poultry feed mills to a multi-faceted business that ranks among the top 10 U.S. grain companies.

Through targeted acquisitions and strategic opportunities, Dick and his team diversified Perdue AgriBusiness into a range of entrepreneurial ventures, including nutritional products for dairy cows, composting, and organic and specialty seed crops.

Dick served on the National Oilseed Processors Association Board of Directors and the National Grain and Feed Association's Strategic Direction Committee. Currently, he serves on the Grain Elevator and Processing Society Grain Company Executive Advisory Council.
