

Perry Aulie President, Perdue AgriBusiness

We Believe In Responsible Food and Agriculture®

Since joining Perdue AgriBusiness in 2019, Perry Aulie has helped shape the future of one of the largest grain and agricultural supply companies in the U.S. The Perdue AgriBusiness portfolio extends far beyond grain, encompassing soybean meal, blended feed ingredients, organic and specialty seeds and oils, and a range of logistics and technology services that keep the agricultural value chain moving efficiently. All are designed to create greater value for local farmers and deliver high-quality products to customers.

As Senior Vice President of Value-Added Products from 2019 through 2023, Perry led Perdue AgriBusiness' transformative growth—tripling sales in just four years—and continues to scale the company today as President.

In his current role, Perry oversees a diverse group of agricultural businesses spanning food, feed, crop inputs, and biofuels. Under his leadership, Perdue AgriBusiness has expanded opportunities for farmers, forged innovative partnerships with multinational food companies, rewarded growers for carbon sequestration practices, and advanced sustainable solutions that reduce greenhouse gas emissions. At the same time, Perry has led a strategic shift in the company's portfolio toward value-added food and feed ingredients, including heart-healthy food oils.

Perry is a respected senior leader with decades of experience in global agribusiness at companies like Louis Dreyfus Company Juices North America and Monsanto Brazil. He holds a Bachelor of Science degree in Agriculture and a Master of Science degree in Agriculture Economics, both from the University of Saskatchewan in Canada.

Perry brings together innovation, collaboration, and sound business acumen to create value for farmers, associates, and customers alike—helping drive Perdue's commitment to raising a better future for all.